

Mothers

Mothers are the main characters and meaning of a home. A human being that by the culture and the society are not seen. These ordinary women have the key role in constructing a society but they have not been heard or seen as they deserve. Mostly have lost their girlhood and their womanhood and just identified as a mother without considering their feminine side and their desires. I believe mothers all over the world have the same meaning. They don't want anything for themselves and they forget what they are and dedicate all of them to their families.

No matter how old are you; As a little girl she tries her best to be a good mother for her doll. A little girl, a teenager or a young mother or a grandma all have something missed. Their girlhood which they search of endlessly in every corner of their untold stories.

They are not seen and they are not heard.
