

This series is about the emotions you go through when taking a pregnancy test. There are 11 images representing every 15 seconds while waiting for the test to finish. There should be 12 images to show the full 3 minutes of emotions but I decided to leave one off as the last 15 seconds and finding out can be different for everyone. I created the series to show the range of feelings a woman can go through and a pregnancy test can be a different thing for everyone.