

I have presented “water elements” series which represent one of the different forms that water can transform the beauty of the nature and reveal other ways to contemplate the water. The reflections, the particles of condensed air, the purity of the skies color and the refreshed feeling for which this precious earth element can bring into our existence.

Tricia

Miho