

Circle of Life

For an unknown reason a house has been decaying for over 30 years. Each object has its own story, the walls speak with eloquence and the fungus that devours the dead matter generates a circle of infinite life. Does this transformation symbolises death or life? What does this tell us about our own existence?