

My name is Seila Montes. I am a Spanish photojournalist based in México city. I graduated from The London College of communication LCC in 2007. Since then I have been working as a freelance.

My work focus is in minorities and disadvantaged communities and individuals as well as covering environmental issues.

My work has been published in different publications like The New York Times, The Guardian, Cuartoscuro, Vice, Creators, Life and style, Huck Magazine, etc.. Here are some links to my published work:

<https://www.nytimes.com/2018/04/09/lens/luchador-mexico-photography.html>

https://www.vice.com/en_au/article/wn35e4/mexican-mennonite-photographer-seila-montes-gonzalez

<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2015/aug/19/fireflies-bioluminescence-mating-cancer-tumors>

<http://cuartoscuro.com.mx/2018/09/el-niagara-mexicano/>

Since 2019 I collaborate on a regular basis with El País América.

I have received some awards, like

2019 POY Latam third prize in daily life "singles".

2019 Felix Schoeller, photo award. Shortlisted in portrait category.

2019 LBS London school of business photography award. Shortlisted.

2018 National award in human rights photography. México. Third prize.

2018 El trabajo y los días. Shortlisted

2015 Tiger photography award, Shortlisted

2014 Focus on woman, Finalist.

2007 Luis Valtueña humanitarian photography award. Finalist.